Rules for Applying for a Safety Recognition Award

All paid-up members of the AIA are permitted to apply for a certificate recognising the level of their safety performance.

Where a subscription is not paid within three months of renewal (i.e. by 1 July in any year) the safety recognition award will be removed and the process of application for an award must be recommenced by the applicant after full payment of the subscription amount has been received.

The safety recognition certificates will be awarded annually by way of application to the AIA.

All applications must contain the following information:

- The name of the individual or company covered by the award application
- The level of award being applied for
- Evidence of current professional license held in the case of an individual or, in the case of a company, the company's operating certificate, current airworthiness certificates of the aircraft to be covered on the award, evidence of safety performance and date the company commenced operations
 - Evidence of safety performance can be constituted by a record of performance from the operator's insurance company, or a sworn statutory declaration, or any other independent verifiable source, that there has been no accident resulting in serious injury to self, crew or passengers over the period specified for which application is made
- Optional information - Evidence of hours flown by the organisation. Providing this information is voluntary as this information may be commercially sensitive, and AIA will only publish this information on the award following request by the applicant
- The application for audit fee is non-refundable if the applicant is unsuccessful

These awards will be independently verified and subject to ratification before being awarded by the AIA.

The applicant will be advised of AIA's decision within two weeks of applying for the award.

If the applicant is dissatisfied with the decision of the office of the AIA the applicant has the right of appeal to the AIA Council. The AIA Council shall undertake a separate investigation. If the appeal is unsuccessful the cost of the investigation will be borne by the applicant and if successful by the office of the AIA.

A Safety Recognition Award (SRA) certificate will be issued stating:

- The safety performance criteria awarded
- The operators AOC number or certificate number
- Registrations of aircraft used in the operation
- Date of commencement of operations for a company
- The licence of the individual pilot or engineer
- Optional information - the number of hours flown or years of service (only if requested by the applicant)
- Any other information acceptable to AIA

This information will be publicly accessible on the AIA web site.

Certificates will be renewable annually upon application.

Award of Certificates

Application for the award can be made at the same time your AIA membership is approved, or at any other time throughout the year.

The award may only be used for the purposes that are consistent with the rules of the AIA.

Removal of Award

The award remains the property of the AIA and shall become invalid and be returned to the AIA if any of the following occurs:

- The terms and conditions upon which the award has been issued are no longer valid
- The individual/organisation or operator is no longer engaged in the operation for which the award was issued, or the licence has lapsed or been withdrawn
- The safety performance criteria is no longer valid
- Information submitted, upon which the award was issued, is proven to be incorrect or invalid
